RELATIONS WITH GERMANY

HAVE BEEN, AND STILL ARE VERY CORDIAL-THE SUBSTAN-TIAL, THINKING GERMANS ARE ENTIRELY FRIENDLY TO AMERICA - MISREPRESENTA-TIONS ON THE PART OF THE "YELLOW JOURNALS" OF THIS COUNTRY AND GERMANY TO BLAME FOR THE RECENT RE-PORTS OF THE UNFRIENDLI-NESS OF THE LATTER COUN-

A Berlin dispatch, in the New York Journal of Commerce says: In view of the deplorable fact that the attitude and sentiment of both the German officialdom and populace have been, and still are, grossly misrepresented in a large portion of the American press, a correspondent of the New York "Staats Zeitung" has undertaken to obtain unquestionable information from competent quarters on this matter. He has asked Mr. Andrew D. White, the diplomatic representative of the United States in Germany, for an explicit statement, and Mr. White was kind enough to grant the request. Another valuable statement of a highly official character was furnished in the German foreign of-These two statements leave no room for the slightest doubt that the official relations between the two countries are the very best. From the be ginning the German government has maintained the strictest neutrality; in fact, a benevolent neutrality for the German populace is decidedly friendly to the Americans. Only the Agrarians and the Anti-Semites show a defant attitude. There are, to be sure guite. United States. The vast majority of the titude. There are, to be sure, quite a number of journals who have published unfavorable criticisms on the American unfavorable criticisms on the American warfare,but this is of no meaning what-ever, those papers only having in mind to "keep up their right to criticise." which is, as generally known, an essen-tially German pecularity. Mr. Andrew D. White suid verbully:

"The relations between the German and American governments have been, and still are, excellent. As a simple matter of fact no person acquainted with the matter will deny that the German government has treated ours with fairness, or claim that it has been wanting in courtesy to our government or to its representative in Berlin. There is no exception to this statement.

"As to German people at large, I am satisfied that the substantial thinking part of them are on the whole friendly to America. I am receiving letters every day which indicate this. Of course, there has been on the part of a considerable number a natural sympathy with Spain as a weaker power fighting a stronger one; quite likely, too, a considerable portion of landed proprietors and of leading manufacturerers have had prejudices against the United States caused by what they have considered interference with their prosperity; and it must be confessed that a very large-majority of the German newspapers have been more or less hontile to the United States. But, it is perfectly evident that German sentiment is temporales in this respect every day, as "As to German people at large, I am ctly evident that German sentiment proving in this respect every day, e real character of the struggle ore and more clearly seen.

"There have been unquestionably some provocations from the American ome of our boasters and tall talkhave been taken too seriously here, ere have also been utterances reding Germany from time to time, a in some of our most respectable raals, which have stirred German retment in some quarters. Indeed, on h sides of the Atlantic there seems have been an elaborate and long-timusd effort to misrepresent everying in both directions, so as to stir illing. Shortly after my arrival here some one cabled to America a story that the feel-ing against America was so strong here that the emperor had felt obliged to publish an order insisting that official people must present themselves at my recentions.

As a matter of fact, the so-called or-As a matter of tact, the so-called order was simply the usual official notifi-cation always issued when a new am-bassador arrives and is ready to give his three regular receptions. The most courteous conduct and kind fedling was shown by all concerned.

"At one of the closing sessions of the Reichstag I was present to hear a most interesting debute. To my amazement shortly afterwards I learned that a story had been widely circulated in America that the secretary of the American embassy and myself had been grossly insulted from the floor by been grossly insulted from the floor by Conservative members of parliament. In this there was not the shadow of Fruh.

Thinking men in Germany realize more and more the friendly attitude of the American government, and that German interests are far more likely to be promoted by maintaining friendly relations with us than by any unpleasant interference whatever. This is not mere surmise on my part; everything I know regarding the relations of the two countries shows me that this proper feeling toward us exists here, and that so far from German sentiment toward us growing worse, it is steadily growing better.

office. The foregoing was shown to a func-locary in the German foreign office offing a responsible position. He fully offirmed Mr. White's statements, and "We can only repeat that all calumnics, more especially those emanating from English sources, have been met with a prompt denial, and have, therefore, collapsed. This applies also to the so-called Trene affair. The talking on board neutral ships of women and children is nothing unusual. The official reports received by this office show that neither the Americans nor the insurgents have shown the least resentment.

about the German ship. Both Dezey and the insurgents intend to limit their hostilities to the uniformed Spaniards bearing weapons; both the Americans and the insurgents little to have women sund children removed from the scape of possible hostilities, as their presence is only embarrassing. The chief of the insurgents himself has asked a neutral man-9f-war to take away four Spanish ladies and six children.

"From some English and American papers it would appear that we Germans are always lying in ambush waiting for a chance to do harm. Such tales are utterly groundless. All requests by Germans, and non-Germans also, to land Germans, and non-Germans also, to land German seamen at Manila for the protection of the property of foreigners have been fintly refused by this government in order to ayold even the slightest pretext for unfavorable comment. To those who appeared most scared we said that in an emergency there would be ships ready to take them aboard—Americans and Germans included. At Manila there exists the best relations between Americans and Germans."

BRAVE AS ANY SOLDIER.

This Girl Ought to Become a Gallant Warrior's Bride.

Detroit Free Press: "There goes a brave girl," said the woman holding a position at the soda water fountain that enabled her to see through the big show window.

"Which one?" asked her companion. "That one crossing the street there," and they both studied a handsome young lady in a fetching summer outfi and they both studied a handsome young lady in a fetching summer outfit as she moved gracefully to the opposite corner. She was above the medium height, built on artistic lines, and with her shoulders well back, had a swinging heel-and-toe gait that marks the good wilker.

"If she were a man she'd be in the army or navy as a fighter, and she'd be there now as a nurse if they would only accept her. I'll tell you what she did," continued her admirer, "and it took pluck, for she's as modest, refined and proper a girl as you ever knew. I live in the same block and our acquaintance is a very lutimate one.

"When the first lot of our boys were leaving for the front there was an old lady who had just come in from the country with some neighbor, standing on the corner above us waiting for a car. I suppose that the poor thing was worn out with grief and loss of sleep. At any rate, she fainted there by the curb, and the girl I pointed out was the first to reach her. We helped her into Amy's house, for that is my friend's name. No sooner was the old lady revived than she inslated that she mush hurry to the depot, for her only boy was with the troops. We protested in vain that she was not equal to the undertaking, and we had to appeal to the authority of a doctor, who positively forbade her going and stood ready to inforce his order.

"She was naturally a quiet and refiring little body, but she was made bold by her mother love and scolded us roundly between sobs because we kept her when her boy would think that she had neglected him at which might be their last opportunity for their meeting. She told pathetically how she had lost her husband in the civil war and how it would break her heart if her son would leave in doubt of her love and thoughtfulness for him.

"Till find him and tell him everything," declared Amy, as she hurried for her hat. "He shall know how much you long do be with him and what prevented you."

"She had the volunteer's name, and when she reached the depot he was pointed out to her, a big, strong, awkw

"She had the volunteer's name, and when she reached the depot he was pointed out to her, a big, strong, awk-ward farmer boy, with a good face, now clouded with aloom. You know what a scene there was at that times—mothers, sisters and sweethearts parting with those dear to them. And there stood that poor boy, alone, a wistful look in his eyes, not so much as a male friend to take his hand and bid him God'speed. Amy went right up to him with the direct way she has and did her errand for the scrowing little mother. It was a striking contrast, that stylish girl, pretty as a picture, and that hulking boy drying to reatrain his grief while he listened to her message. The boys who knew her wondered and laughed, naturally enough. But I told you how brave she is.

"'Did mother send me anything?' he asked, just as an embarrassed child would have done. Poor woman! she "Did mother send me anything?' he asked, just as an embarrassed child would have done. Poor woman! she had thought of nothing but to let him know that she had remembered and tried to reach him.

"Yes, this," and, throwing her arms about his neck, she gave the astonished soldier boy a resounding kiss and with face aflame was hurrying away before he could recover from the shock. I'll warrant that every man there enyled the big brown-faced boy, who smiled, straightened up, and realized that the world had suddenly been illumined for him. Could anything have been more thoughtful or brave?"

There was no great outburst of speculative enthusiasm in the stock market to-day as a result of the peace news. The market broadened out materially and was confidentially strong all day, but inquiring observers feel considerable doubt whether the peace prospects had much to do with the rise. Of much more effect is the generally growing conviction that the duliness of the money market is not all due to slug-gish trade conditions, but rather to the abundant supplies of money at interior points to meet the requirements of ex-panding business and the movement panding business and the movement thus far of the crops. Yesterday's gold imports resulted in stiffening foreign exchange and in appreciably easier money rates for time loans. Exchange exports are not able to figure any profit on the gold import operation at the present level of exchange and these operaent level of exchange and these operations must be accepted as anticipative of future conditions. If the importers anticipated higher money rates abroad
they probably would leave their funds
there without drawing the exchange,
It seems doubthil, also, whether the present low rates of money here would themselves invite such an operation.
Prospects of an enlarged demand

The general tenor of talk heard in Wall street is also of expected increase in trade and industrial expansion. The growth of the west-bound freight movement and favorable reports from experts in the different trades are accepted against the shrinkage in the grain movement and resulting decrease in earnings on some of the western railroads. Statements of carnings for the fiscal year are being brought out simultaneously with those for the month of July and the heavy outlay for betterments and improvements shown by these exhibits, indicating possible economics in the future, serve to neutralize the decrease in current earnings. The general view in the street is unmistakebly bullish. The general strength of the market was taken decrease of so realize profile in some street is unmistakably bullish. The general strength of the market was taken advantage of to realize profits in some of the recently manipulated industrial specialties, but there was a bread and comprehensive demand for the standard stocks, the grangers and the favortie dividend payers leading. Dealings in bonds were also active and widely distributed. A feature of the day was the rise to par of the Northern Pacific 4s.
